Report cites deterioration of U.S. scientific leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report prepared for a congressional subcommittee warned today that the scientific and technological leadership of the United States has deteriorated, requiring an assessment of the future of research and its effect on the nation.

"The implications ... are of immense importance for both our domestic welfare and our international position," the report said.

The 87-page document was written by Robert Gilpin, professor of public and international affairs at Princeton University, for the Joint Economic Committee's subcommittee on economic growth.

It warns that Japan, West Germany and other Western European nations have developed their economies with a heavy emphasis on research and development in fields that relate directly to civilian needs, while the United States' "priorities have been too much determined by the Cold War with the Soviet Union and by considerations of national prestige

"An inordinate proportion of our total national scientific and technical resources has been devoted to a relatively few areas of 'big science and technology: space, defense, and atomic energy," the report says. Gilpin said the government must decide whether the United States will compete economically with foreign nations by developing products in the areas of health, energy and pollution.

"There is a pressing need to initiate the necessary policies and create the policy mechanism to stimulate the technological innovations and industrial productivity required to help meet international economic competition, stimulate economic growth and solve our domestic problems," the report says.

William R. Buechner, a committee staff economist, said the report summarized the two roads the United States could take.

"We have to decide whether we're going to develop new products using broad-based research and development, or follow the British route, imposing trade barriers and living off foreign investments, rather than production." he said.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., chairman of the subcommittee on economic growth, said at a breakfast today with reporters that Gilpin stressed the need for increased concentration on "the competitive products the consumer is seeking."

"What we're talking about here is keeping industry competitive in this country," the senator said.

"We have not been spending the sums in industry and government in the advancement of science that we ought to," he said.

Bentsen's subcommittee will hold hearings next week on the lack of a national technology policy and its impact on the economy.

In a speech prepared for the Senate, Bentsen said that since the early 1960's, U.S. firms "have found it easier and safer to seek to expand by manufacturing and selling old products than to innovate and create new products."

new products."
"This trend could hve disastrous consequences for our economy if it is allowed to go unchecked," he said

Landmark lawsuit?

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)

— A potential landmark damage suit has been filed against the Chrysler Corp. by a policeman's widow who claims the auto maker is to blame for the shooting death of her hushand

Linda Kennedy, 33, of Delray Beach, alleged in the suit filed here Wednesday that a design defect in the rear view mirror system of her husband's Dodge patrol car created a "blind spot" in his vision and allowed a gunman to sneak up behind him.

Daniel Kennedy, 33, was killed by a single pistol shot in the head as he sat in his car in the parking lot of a well-lighted service station on the night of Aug. 10, 1974.

Investigators said the murderer, who was never caught, apparently slipped up behind Kennedy, stuck a pistol behind his left ear and fired.

Mrs. Kennedy's suit asks for damages in "excess of $2,500." The jury will set actual damages, if any. No hearing date has been set.

A mother of six children, Mrs. Kennedy said she filed the suit "not for money but to try to save the lives of other police officers."

It long has been held that manufacturers are liable for design defects of a mechanical nature, but the Kennedy suit was believed to represent a dramatic court test of a new legal philosophy known as "human factor design negligence."

Frank Fowler, an Orlando, Fla., safety consultant and college instructor who will testify as a witness for Mrs. Kennedy, described human factor design negligence as "the last technical frontier to be understood in products liability litigation.

"Because we are human and not automatons, we exhibit a certain amount of variability in our actions. It is when this variability exceeds safe limits that tragedy strikes."

Heat locks in heavy smog; 100-degree temperatures due

By BOB NAGEY PB Staff Writer

Heavy smog locked in by a heat wave is expected to continue in the valley today and Friday in the wake of an air pollution recording that pushed the needle almost to a stifling third-stage episode Wednesday afternoon.

The Upland-Montclair area reported a reading of .47 parts of ozone per million parts of air shortly after 3 p.m., barely missing the third stage reading of .50. It was the heaviest reading anywhere in the valley in the past two years.

Although the readings will drop somewhat today, there is no relief in sight for the weekend because of the hot weather that is expected to push the mercury to the 100-degree mark.

A spokesman for the Air Pollution Control District said the valley needed either a strong wind or a rainfall, or a much cooler air front to break up the smog. The weatherman said none of those was likely to occur through Sunday.

As a result, air pollution control districts in both Los Angeles and San Bernardino called for first stage readings in the .20s and .30s this afternoon and Friday.

The Upland-Montclair area had the highest reading by far Wednesday.

Pomona reported a high of .27, and the Ontario-Chino area had a high of .26. A first stage episode is called after a reading of .20, and a second stage is reported after a reading of .35 and above.

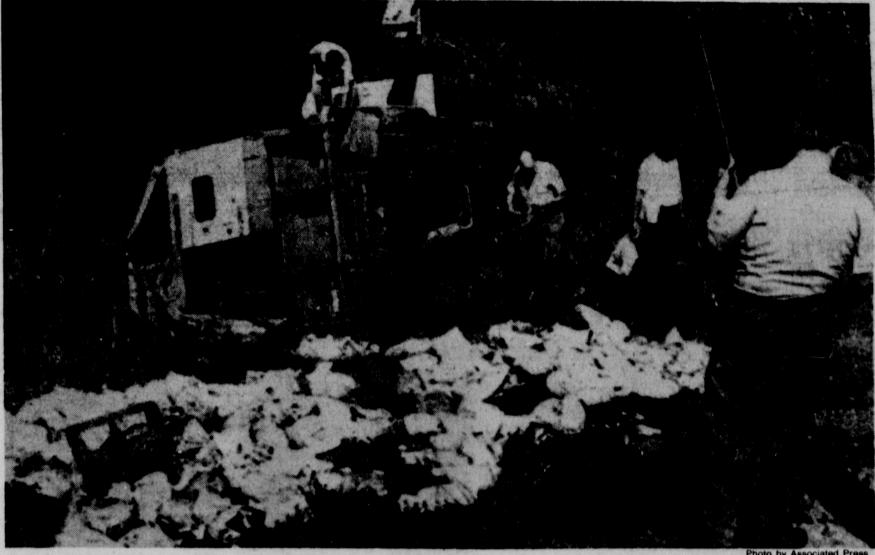

Temperatures Wednesday were in the high 90s.

Parched conditions were blamed for four fires in the San Bernardino National Forest. The fires were reportedly touched off by lightning during a brief thunderstorm.

Scattered thunderstorms were predicted for the mountains again to-day, but the weatherman saw no effects of the storm for the valley.

Continued hot weather was expected here throughout the weekend with the mercury reaching 100 degrees in the afternoon. A low of 63 is predicted at night.

The quake, registering 5.0 on the Richter Scale, was felt Wednesday in a 60.000-square-mile area of western Minnesota, southeastern North Dakota, eastern South Dakota and northwestern Iowa.

The quake was only the seventh recorded in Minnesota during the last 130 years and the first since 1950.

Book city youth as shots fired at car returning from funeral

By JACK BURSON PB Staff Writer

A Pomona gang member was arrested Wednesday moments after shooting at a car containing four Chinoans who were returning home from the burial of their friend slain Thursday night in Chino, police reported.

Pomona police officers said they witnessed Wednesday's shooting at San Antonio Avenue and Philadelphia Street. All three shots missed and then the pistol jammed, they said.

The incident, a continuation of the hostility between Pomona and Chino street gangs, followed the burial of the body of Albert M. Martinez at Holy Cross Cemetery in south Pomona.

Martinez, 21, was shot to death on Second Street between C and D streets.

Pomona and Chino police detectives were following the victims' car when the shooting occured. Pomona Detective Jerry C. Uribe said he saw the youthful Pomonan fire at the Chinoans' passing car as the youth stood on the northeast corner of the intersection.

The police stopped, drew their weapons and ordered the youth to drop his pistol and lie on the ground while he was searched and handcuffed. They said they recovered a .25-caliber pistol which had jammed.

A few minutes later Chino police stopped the victims at Riverside Drive east of East End Avenue. They were identified ad driver Raymond Porter, 18, and his passengers, Gilbert Martinez, 17, Antonio Sanchez, 20, and Gilbert Garcia, 16. All were quoted as telling Chino officers they had not been aware of the shooting and had not seen the Pomona youth fire at them.

The Pomonan, who was not identified because he is 17, was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder, assault with a deadly weapon and firing on a moving vehicle. He was taken to Juvenile Hall later in the day.

Also at Juvenile Hall were three teen-age youths accused of slaying Martinez last Thursday night. Chino police said they have filed murder petitions in Juvenile Court against them in connection with that killing. A Pomona man arrested in Martinez' death, Henry R. V Avila, 20, has been released without charge, they said.

The fueding is between the 12th Street Gang of Pomona and the Chino Sinners, officers said.

Marijuana bill inked by Brown

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. signed legislation Wednesday reducing the penalty in California for possession of up to an ounce of marijuana to a traffic ticket-type citation and a fine of up to $100.

The law, passed after years of legislative struggles, goes into effect Jan. 1, 1976. It makes the possession of up to one ounce of marijuana a misdemeanor. One ounce of marijuana is enough for about 20 cigarettes.

Previous law permitted judges to prosecute marijuana possession as either a misdemeanor or a felony, with a maximum first-offense penality of up to 10 years in prison.

Present severe penalties against marijuana dealers remain in effect. The penalties under the new California law are the same as those in effect in Oregon since October 1973.

Proponents of the California measure said enforcement of the previous marijuana possession law cost thousands of hours of law enforcement and court time.

A spokesman for the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, Gordon Brownell, said California was previously among the 2 or 3 toughest states on marijuana, but now has 1 of the 4 or 5 most liberal laws.

In a statement, Brown warned that the law "does not decriminalize possession of marijuana as many suppose"

Ayala: Brown has paved way for economy

State senator speaks at Ontario chamber session

Although Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. slashed $100 million from the new state budget, his spending program will stand.

So declared State Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., Wednesday when speaking to some 50 persons at an Ontario Chamber of Commerce

Noting he wasn't happy with all the budget cuts, Ayala said he didn't believe there would be any attempts to override the governor's vetoes when the state legislature reconvenes next month.

"But if there is an attempt, I don't plan to support it," he added. "Gov. Brown has paved the way for fiscal responsibility and economy in California - and I for one can't fault him on that score."

Ayala said he is not happy with Brown's deletion of $98,000 for an innovative biomedical training program for first year medical students at UC Riverside.

People often asked Ayala what kind of a job Brown has done during the first six months, in office, the legislator said.

People did not know where he was coming from. But I said to wait until after the budget. I then found out that Brown is for real. He signed the bill and vetoed or blue-pencilled $100.3 million off the budget.

Looking to August when legislators return to Sacramento, Ayala said the first order of business will probably be the medical malpractice issue and

Senate Bill 220 which would increase school districts average daily attendance (ADA) allocations by $28 per

Regarding the malpractice issue, Ayala said doctors were anxious to have action taken several months ago. But as the legislature was adjourning, some believed more time was needed for a matter of this im-

Ayala said Sen. Albert Rodda's school finance measure did not pass since Brown didn't want to allocate the $28 per ADA. The governor and Rodda later compromised at $21 but some disagreement developed on the summer school programs.

Brown wanted to put a "cap" on these programs where districts would be paid only for the costs incurred, he explained. "We couldn't get with him (Brown) before the Ayala offered a quick review of his bills introduced this session.

He viewed as the most important Senate Bill 222 which establishes a pump tax in the Chino Basin Municipal Water District to finance a study on how to best stabilize the water level.

"We are now losing about 70,000 acre feet per year and this study is needed to prevent a later crisis. One of the bill's better features is that it will "self destruct" after $400,000 in taxes has been raised.

Other Ayala measures include: - Senate Joint Resolution 9 which requests the U.S. Department of Defense to rescind its recommendation to transfer the Air National Guard from Ontario International Airport to Riverside.

Senate Bill 1087 which would give Los Angeles, Riverside and San Bernardino counties joint powers in setting up a railroad commuter train service for these three counties.

- Senate Bill 1085 which allows the Ontario-Montclair School District to develop a program to provide intensive remedial education and personal counseling and motivational enrichment for seventh and eighth grade students who might drop from school or graduate from the school system without achieving their individual potentials.

- Senate Bill 1166 which allocates $2 million to continue the "quick draw" program where the probation departments work with the California Youth Authority and police agencies work with youngsters before they get into serious problems with Senate Bill 1034 which provides for three additional Superior Court judges in San Bernardino County.

In closing, Ayala said his first six months of this legislative session have been a "source of satisfaction, fulfillment and gratification. And I hope that I'll be just as pleased with our next six months work in Sacramento."

Reagan campaign:

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The burgeoning campaign that hopes to send former California Gov. Ronald Reagan to the White House has started going public with a mixture of coyness and testing politicians call "keeping your options open."

Publicly, the conservative Reagan has committed himself to little more than promising to decide by the end of the year whether to challenge President Ford for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination. He even declines to say if the political winds have tilted him for or against a run.

He denies encouraging a former adviser, Lyn C. Nofziger, and others to set up a Reagan political committee in Washington, D. C. But it seemed doubtful that the move, revealed Tuesday, would have been taken without at least Reagan's tacit

And a Reagan aide here makes it clear the committee's purpose and the ex-governor's needs as a potential candidate dovetail almost exact-

"Broadly speaking, the governor wants to feel in his own mind that outpouring of support he meets around the country is more than skin deep," the aide and adviser said Wednesday.

"If the committee is created (as expected by month's end) he will watch it very closely to see what kind of success it meets" both in attracting important political support and at least promises of financial Reagan's fund raising possibilities seemed to suffer a blow today with the release of a list of Ford backers in California. A number of wealthy and influential Californians associated with past Reagan campaigns were among the 44 persons announced for Ford's state organizing committee.

'keep options open'

Reagan vacationing out of town, said he did not care to comment on the Ford committee's composition.

As important as pledges of financial backing to Reagan's possible candidacy is the "open and contested" convention he contends is vital for the GOP's welfare since Ford was not elected to the presidency.

Although Reagan says public opinion polls "are only as good as the day they are taken," the Reagan aide said. "We will take a look at a lot of polls" in the future. A recent one showed Reagan slipping further behind President Ford

The aide denied plans for any publcity blitz now to boost Reagan's ratings. But the former governor has a broad forum for his views in radio programs carried by 320 stations and a syndicated column that claims some 230 newspapers. He also makes about eight to 10 speeches a month throughout the country.

Claremont joins county fire district

Claremont's city fire department will become a Los Angeles County operation Aug. 1.

The City Council Tuesday night authorized Mayor Bertye Smith to sign an agreement with the county Board of Supervisors for the city to join the county Fire Protection District. The board must also approve the agreement

Mayor Smith voted in favor of the agreement, although she feels joining the district is not in the best interest of Claremont residents. She had been the lone dissenter in an earlier vote on the proposal.

City Manager Norman King's

recommendation was based on "economics only," because he said the city will be joining a "less efficient fire protection system."

"Joining the county will save Claremont substantial amounts of money," King said.

On the other hand, "The county spends almost as much money staffing a four-man station as the city spends on two stations totaling six men, a fire chief and an assistant fire chief," King said.

The city manager said that under the new agreement the county will have to man only one new station. the city's Station 1 on Second Street.

The county already is operating a station on Sumner Avenue, and another on Padua Avenue, both in the Claremont area.

King said that the county would continue the format of a central fire station, with 12 men dispatched for every fire.

"I regret losing our loyal fire employes to the county," King said. "We're also losing a good chief in Bob Lee, who had been with us seven years. He has been efficient in every

King said that Lee had recommended in favor of joining the county district despite Lee's personal feelings to the contrary.

King said that the city will keep Fire Station 2 built in September 1965 on Base Line Road, because "the county is not able to pay for it. Of course, that doesn't preclude it being used for a fire station sometime in the future.

The city probably will use the facility for recreation classes.

Meanwhile, most of the 20 uniformed fire personnel, including Lee, are looking forward to their new jobs, which mean higher pay, greater fringe benefits, and a reduction in work hours from the city's 59 to the county's 56.

To replace Reagan's 'work for welfare'

Brown works at new job plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) - Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and his top welfare advisers are considering a new job program for welfare recipients to replace the junked "work-forwelfare" system.

The Democratic governor met with aides earlier this week several days after his administration dismantled former Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan's three-year-old work-for-welfare program.

Brown spokesmen said the program had never found jobs for many people and had just harassed

Robert Carleson, who master-minded Reagan's welfare reform program and who is now U.S. commissioner of welfare, predicted in an interview Brown would have to find a replacement for the work-for-welfare program.

"It was the brakes on the whole welfare reform program. I would say it will be very difficult to keep a lid on welfare with no work requirement, as soon as the word gets

Robert Gnaizda, Brown's assistant secretary of health and welfare, who was at the meeting with the governor, described Brown as "extremely concerned" about getting jobs for welfare people.

"Society can't support the number of people who believe they should be on welfare at the standard they believe they are entitled to,' Gnaizda said

Gnaizda said the concept of Reagan's work-for-welfare was "ex-cellent." Under it, employable welfare applicants who couldn't be placed in regular jobs or training programs were required to work 80 hours a month at public service jobs to qualify for welfare. Women with children under 6 were exempt.

The program was called "Community Work Experience Program (CWEP)" and was blasted by legislative opponents as "slave labor." The Democratic legislature once passed a repealer, but it was vetoed by Reagan.

'The problem with CWEP," Gnaizda said, "is that it did not accomplish its stated purpose. It was a showpiece for the Reagan administration, and its real purpose was to humiliate social workers and "It was administratively bungled. They never developed even pseudo-jobs. Mainly it was a registration program. We've dismantled it. We are working on a job program for welfare recipients—something that no state has developed so far, a program that really develops jobs that welfare people can do."

Ford wants 3-cent levy to build oil spill fund

atop programs already increasing consumer prices of petroleum, President Ford wants Congress to set up a $200 million oil-spill damage fund financed by a new oil levy of up to 3 cents a barrel.

While awaiting a close study of details, some congressional sources say they are uncertain what impact the program will have on consumers but the impact is estimated to be relatively light.

For example, a $1-a-barrel levy on crude oil generally is estimated to translate into a price hike of 1.5 cents a gallon of gasoline at the pump. Based on that rule of thumb, some congressmen viewed Ford's oilspill program cost as comparatively mild.

Gasoline producers recently announced retail price hikes as a result of Ford's tariff program, which has added $2 to the cost of a barrel of imported oil.

Still, the opening reception in Congress could depend on technical examination of the bill Ford said Wednesday he is sending to Capitol

"This legislation would establish a comprehensive and uniform system for fixing liability and settling claims for oil pollution damages in U.S. waters and coastlines," the President told Congress.

"I consider this legislation to be of high national importance as we seek to meet our energy needs in an environmentally sound manner," he Along with "defining liability for oil spills," Ford said his bill "would establish a uniform system for settling claims and assure that none will go uncompensated, such as in cases where it is impossible to identify the source of the spill. The legislation provides for a fund of up to $200 million derived from a small fee on oil transported or stored on or near Asked for reaction, House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said, "Rather than tax everyone to pay for the mistakes of a few, I would want to examine ways to prevent spills from happening in the first place and also consider making the offenders alone pay into a sludge fund.'

navigable waters.'

House Merchant Marine Chairman

Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., told a reporter she generally favors the Ford plan and thinks it would stand a good chance of passage.

Ford said the nation's energy needs "require accelerated development of our offshore oil and gas resources and the increased use of tankers and deep water ports. This proposal would provide a broad range of protection against the potential oil spills necessarily associated with those activities.

Ford said there were 13,328 reported oil spills involving more than 24 million gallons in 1973. A third of the oil spilled is from 'unidentified sources, where compensation cannot be obtained under existing law," the President said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government's anti-inflation agency is trying to convince the industrial community to go slow with any price increases as the nation recovers from the recession, the agency's director says.

Russians negotiate for grain

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said today the Russians are negotiating with major U.S. grain exporters for 'several million tons of grain."

Jackson's statement came after Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said Wednesday that reports of an impending grain deal with the Soviets "may be more than rumors.'

Butz told a news conference in Kansas City that intelligence sources indicate that Russia will have to buy American wheat this year.

The Agriculture Department says hot, dry weather in Soviet grainlands is expected to reduce grain harvests to a level about 10 per cent short of Moscow's 1975 goal

Jackson, chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee, said in a speech prepared for delivery today in the Senate that "some or all" of the grain under negotiation could come from this year's American

He said the committee staff received confirmation earlier this week from major exporters that they are negotiating with the Soviets.

'We were also told that no major sales have been made to date,' Jackson said. He added that this had been confirmed by the Agriculture

A 17-year-old Ontario youth was arrested early today on suspicion of armed robbery at an Ontario 7-11

Kissinger-French talks going well

PARIS (AP) - Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger conferred for more than an hour today with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and reported "very good progress had been made toward resuming the dialogue between oil producers and

Kissinger conferred first with Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues and later went with Sauvagnargues to the unscheduled meeting with Giscard d'Estaing at the Elysee Palace

As he emerged from his talk with the French president, the secretary of state said "we had very constructive talks on the most outstanding issues, in the spirit of friendly cooperation which characterizes our relationship.

A spokesman for Giscard d'Estaing said the president decided to invite Kissinger and Sauvagnargues to his office when the talks between the two ministers showed that the viewpoints of the two governments on the energy dialogue had moved substantially closer.

"The president decided to receive Sauvagnargues largely to discuss in detail how the dialogue can be resumed," the spokesman said.

U.S. officials said Kissinger believes another preliminary energy conference can begin within two months and that separate commissions dealing with energy, raw materials and the problems of developing nations can start their deliberations by the end of the year.

The first preparatory meeting collapsed in April when the United States and other industrial nations rejected demands by Algeria and other developing nations that the oil conference be broadened to include all raw materials.

Kissinger was due to confer with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in Bonn on Saturday following two days of talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Gromyko, in a brief arrival statement in Geneva, reaffirmed Soviet intentions to "consolidate detente and peace.

Ecuador cuts oil price

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) - Ecuador has cut the price of oil it exports to California and the Caribbean by 43 cents a barrel in hopes it will result in increased demand.

The government said the reduction, which was effective Wednesday, lowered the price from $10.84 to $10.41. But Texaco and Gulf, which operate Ecuador's oilfields in a consortium with the state oil corporation, said they had been paying between $11.20 and $11.25, leaving a new price of $10.77 to $10.82.

A government spokesman said the new price is competitive and will give the oil companies a "reasonable profit" in Ecuador. The companies had no comment.

The government said it accomplished the cut by lowering the percentage of income tax being paid by Gulf and Texaco.

Turkey arms sale gets panel support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's request for resumption of U.S. arms sales to Turkey drew support from leaders of the House International Relations Committee today. There were predictions the House would act on the proposal as early as next week.

Committee Chairman Thomas P. Morgan, D-Pa., began hearings on the request by supporting Ford's statement that Congress' cutoff of U.S. aid to Turkey has resulted in a grave situation.

"We hope this committee, as it has done in the past, can help bring peaceful settlement in Cyprus," he

Rep. William S. Broomfield of Michigan the committee's ranking Republican, said he believed Ford's bill calling for release of $78.4 million worth of U.S. arms that Turkey has paid for plus resumption of other sales would be acted on by the House next week

Broomfield said he expected the House to approve the measure, although he said no head count has been taken.

The leadoff witness at today's hearing, Under Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco, said the embargo against arms sales to Turkey must be removed to solve "the deteriorating situation in the eastern Mediterranean.'

SANTA BARBARA (AP)- Sheriff's deputies said they would seek a complaint today against millionaire Michael Butler, producer of the rock musical "Hair," after they found a neatly-tended field of opium poppies on the grounds of his home.

Two other residents of Butler's suburban Montecito home were arrested and booked Wednesday for investigation on a variety of narcotics charges.

The two were identified as Richard J. Warner, 29, and Robert M. Oswald, 19. Authorities said Butler was reported to be out of town.

Sheriff's Lt. George Bregante, said the field contained 3,000 poppies and the evidence indicated they had been recently tapped for their gum which is used in the manufacture of "The poppies were in a 50-by100-foot plot, very neatly tended, which made this particular raid rather unusual," said Bregante.

"I don't know, offhand, of any other such discovery in recent years. The opium poppy is not only illegal in this country, it is also extremely rare and rather difficult to cultivate.

"For that reason, you almost never find even a few of them actually being grown in the United States - let alone a whole field of them.'

Bregante said Butler's property was raided after deputies were tipped they would find "a substantial

CHICAGO (AP) - The drews and Mary Hensley. FBI has concentrated its search for Emily and William Harris of the Symbionese Liberation Army in the Chicago area, The Chicago Sun-Times says.

Stranded — regain confidence

REVERE, Mass. (AP) impression of this area - It took a news story, a broadcaster and some inquiring morning commuters to restore a California couple's confidence in America.

The combination led Howard and Lillian Nibblett to their truck camper that had been stolen two weeks ago when it contained everything they owned.

WASHINGTON (AP) -The federal government is providing live entertainment for tourists while they wait, sometimes for two or three hours, to see some of the capital's monuments.

Five young actormusicians, the Strolling Troubadours, will perform through August at tourist sites in Washington.

The $38,000 program is supported jointly by the National Endowment for the Arts and National Capital Parks.

Heads of the two federal agencies, Nancy Hanks and Jack Fish, attended the opening performance Tuesday on the Ellipse, just south of the White House.

The performers, who will do four shows a day Tuesday through Sunday plus extra presentations, have prepared a variety of programs which they will try to tailor to their audiences - Western. Southern. mid-American or whatever.

Miss Hanks said the idea was hatched in the National Council on the Arts, a presidentially appointed panel of 26 members which acts in an advisory capacity to her agency

"There are an awful lot of wonderful people here." When found, the truckcamper had been stripped of all their belongings, including a boat with trailer and a motorcycle. All that was left was a pair of Nibblett's pants. The retired couple from Seal Beach, Calif., had gone 22,000 happy miles across the country in the first half of a three-year relaxed bicentennial journey to see America.

But two weeks ago they parked in a shopping center in adjoining Saugus to get a few groceries. When they returned 20

A Melrose couple let the Nibbletts use a trailer home while they searched in vain in the unfamiliar area for some sign of their missing truck.

Finally they bought airline tickets to head for home Tuesday night. The Boston Globe published a story in Tuesday morning's editions about the couple who had traveled across the country without as much as a fishhook being stolen only to lose everything in Massachusetts.

Boston radio stations picked up the story, and one, WBZ, urged morning commuters to watch for the vehicle. Two un-

The Nibbletts cancelled their flight tickets, since all their belongings are missing it looks like they'll have a little delay before they can resume their trip.

'But we're going to stick around a few days now." said Nibblett. "Then I'm afraid we're going to have to go home to recoup, and possibly stay there a short while before setting out again.

They may even try New England again.

Water consultant at odds with

The possibility that the La Verne City Council might end its 20-year relationship with its water consultant loomed today because of a controversy over a $40 million bond issue proposed by the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District.

The consultant, Kenneth I. Mullen of El Monte, who had taken a position six months ago against the valleywide water project, unexpectedly reversed himself Monday night and recommended approval.

Councilmen were so annoyed that they barely allowed him to give his Mullen said he changed his mind because the rising cost of power has made it too costly to get by without the project.

The city is currently finishing a $3 million water distribution system approved by the voters five years ago, which is supposed to quadruple its water storage capacity. At the time the bond issue was promoted, both the city and Mullen said the system would take care of the community's water needs through at least 1985.

"Why should we spend another $21/2 million now, Mayor Mike M. Morales wanted to know. "We just got through with a system of our own.'

Mullen explained that the city's system is set up to distribute the additional water. The proposed bond issue of the Pomona Valley district would bring the water to the system for distribution. La Verne's share of those costs is estimated at about $21/2 mil-

What disturbs me is this 180-degree turn-around,' Councilman Harrison Sanborn commented. "Just six months ago you told us. Mr. Mullen, that we didn't really need the new system, that we had enough water. What changed your mind?"

Mullen explained that he felt it would be cheaper to obtain new water from PVMWD sources than to boost it into the city's reservoirs in the hills. He said the rising cost of power, particularly oil, was making the costs prohibitive.

The consultant con-

But Councilman Dan Lopez was not satisfied with the answer. He asked consultant to analyze La Ratliff, president of Defense Marketing Services, Inc. - DMS.

The Pentagon already has spent millions on the development of unmanned planes and tanks, Ratliff says. By 1980, he predicts, laser beam which can wipe out an entire forest, will be

Ratliff says the weapons of the future will be so devastating that man will dare use them only in un-Ratliff and his staff of inhabited places such as the moon or Antartica. But since man is aggressive by nature, he will be tempted to use the weapons simply because he has created them, Ratliff said.

He said a battle by remote control in Antartica or the moon would probably involve a sensor system spread around strategic weapons placed in either of the two places. The sensors would tell the military command in, say, Washington or Moscow that an enemy had launched an attack on its weapons. A counterattack would be initiated by remote control signal.

fighting machines in such a battle. Men would be pushing buttons.

Each year, employeowned DMS produces eight million sheets of paper on defense spending, contracts and weaponry data in 14 market reports ranging from "eectronic systems" to "misslesspacecraft."

The material - all of it publicly available - is compiled into 600-page. $390 volumes.

DMS counts among its subscribers the Central Intelligence Agency, the House Armed Services Committee, Israel, Japan and nearly all the NATO allies. The bulk of its world will need 5,087 more publications go to defense manufacturers

We're valuable to industry because we're a funnel to them. But we don't do anything that a company couldn't do for half a million dollars," said Richard Slawsky, vice president of operations. We try to explain the defense market not only for the giants but also for small sub-contractors."

The thousands of companies involved in fighter plane production might find it valuable to know from reading the DMS world aircraft forecast that within four years, the Companies making radios or air conditioners will want to know that the Navy will spend $21 million a year on that equipment for a dozen Trident submarines by 1982. The company says the trend in aircraft production is toward transport planes. The Navy has begun a $50 billion, 10-year construction program that will add three carriers, 30 destroyers, 50 patrol frigates and an air cushion ship capable of traveling at 80 knots. Another 1,769 new ships will be added to Western world navies. DMS says.

In addition to its market reports, which are updated monthly with 40 to 60 pages of news information, DMS publishes six special 10vear forecasts on world ships, aircraft and the laser market. The aircraft forecasts cost $3,000 and are updated annually.

DMS also publishes monthly "intelligence" reports, and a list of every contract awarded by the Pentagon.

'In we can't get the information openly, we don't print it. We won't report classified information. And we don't turned them down. We make value judgments. We're a neutral organization," said Ratliff. The bulk of the information comes from congressional hearings, interviews with foreign military attaches and from digging through several hundred defense publications. DMS staff members - many of them former military people - also follow the Pentagon budget from presidential submission to doption.

Ratliff says DMS is very careful about who receives its information on military hardware.

We won't sell to unfriendly countries. Peking and Moscow tried to order all 12 volumes but we won't sell to the Arab countries because they are too closely aligned with the Soviets.

Pomona firemen Wednesday extinguished two structure fires, both deliberately set, and a car fire, caused by a gasoline leak.

Children playing with matches started a fire about 4:15 p.m. which destroyed a wooden shed and furniture stored inside, then spread to an adjacent building, firemen said. The shed was situated behind the house at 818 E. Sixth St., occupied by Fern Flecter. Loss was not es-

Firemen said matches were used to start a grass fire behind a vacant house at 810 Hyde Ave. about 9:17 p.m. This fire spread to a wooden arbor behind the house, partially damaging it. Loss was not estimated. Owners of the property were unknown.

A 1966 automobile, owned by Verlean Ryals of 1466 S. Palomares St., and parked at 435 W. Mission Ave., caught fire at 2:43 p.m. when gasoline leaking from the carburetor ignited, firemen said. Loss was estimated at $150.

Police pay dispute goes to state mediation

By ED PRATHER PB Staff Writer

Pomona police officers' salary dispute with the city will go to state mediation next Thursday, both sides agreed after a four-hour negotiating session Wednesday failed to achieve an agreement.

Spokesmen for the city and police said today that neither side altered its position during Wednesday's session, with the city continuing to offer a 2.5 per cent salary increase and police countering with a 20 per cent

Walnut car crash kills woman, 59

A Los Angeles woman was killed in a two-car collision Wednesday evening in Walnut which involved a Pomona woman.

The victim, Mrs. Chun Lee, 59, was pronounced dead on arrival at West Covina's Queen of the Valley Hospital. She had a head injury. Her daughter-in-law, Sherry Lee, 26, was in serious condition there today, under treatment for internal injuries.

mediator from the State Conciliation Service will meet with city and police negotiators on Thursday in an advisory role with no binding power.

Richard Shaurette, president of the police officers' association, said that a general membership meeting of the police association will be held tonight at 6 to discuss the situation and decide whether any action would be taken by police in advance of next Thursday's meeting.

On July 1, when the salary contract between police and the city expired, police bagan a "professionalization campaign" in protest of the city's wage offer.

Although the campaign was reportedly to slow police service, there has been no evidence of a slowdown nor unusually high sick leave

Wednesday's bargaining session was only the third official meeting between city and police representatives in the labor dispute. In the first meeting on June 17, the city offered police a fringe benefit package in exchange for an undisclosed salary cut, while police countered with a 15 per cent salary increase demand and a lengthy list of new fringe benefits.

Representatives met again on June 30, under threat of the police slowdown, but could reach no agreement although a number of proposals were made by both sides.

The negotiations were declared to be at an impasse following that meeting, with representatives from both sides ending with the same proposals that failed to achieve an agreement Wednesday.

Mobile home, auto destroyed in blaze

A Montclair woman lost her mobile home, her belongings and her car in a blaze at the Monterey Mobile Home Park Thursday afternoon.

Montclair Fire Department, assisted by Chino Valley Fire Depart-ment, fought the fire at 11250 Ramona Ave. at approximately 4:30 p.m. The flames were extinguished within 20 minutes, but the structure and its contents and a 1972 compact station wagon were already a total Firemen estimated the value of the mobile home and its contents to be $11,000 and the car was valued at approximately $1,500.

An adjoining unit suffered $3,000 exposure damage to its exterior.

The owner of the mobile home, Mrs. Eleanor Smith, was home at the time of the fire. The cause is still under investigation

Setback plan heard

A public hearing on residential setback changes was continued Wednesday until July 23 after representatives of several development companies disputed some provisions at a Walnut City Council meeting.

Developers asked for more flexibility in front yard setbacks.

Minimum front setbacks in developments now must average 25 feet but may be as short as 20 feet in some cases

Planners had asked for a reduction to 20 feet only when access is indirect, such as an elbow-shaped driveway allowing more parking space than a straight driveway.

Developers also question a minimum side vard setback of 12 feet on one side of a residence. Currently the minimum is five feet on The 12-foot setback was proposed to allow ready access to the rear of the lot, storage of recreational vehicles or construction of an open patio, the latter up to five feet of the property line Developers told councilmen the 12-foot setback would cause difficulties in construction of the large houses that now are fashionable. Setback changes are linked to simplification of the city code in connection with residential zone sec-Regulations pertaining to five single family residential zones now are contained in several sections. City staff members propose that they be combined in a single section.

Teachers will ask return of 9-month year

ESCONDIDO (AP)-A teachers group says year-round schools cost too much and they will petition for a return to the traditional nine-month school year.

He said year-round schools will cost the district more in administrators' salaries and maintenence costs.

tain sanitary standards. After attending a training program conducted by the San Bernardino County Health Department, workers would be given certificates.

The program, which has been endorsed by the Upland Chamber of Commerce, requires that a worker attend the training class within two weeks of being hired.

The course, which will be given at the county health offices and takes less than an hour, offers a certificate good for two years after which it would need to be renewed.

The program also imposes annual fees for food-service establishments. The fees proposed are $3 for an establishment with a single self-employed person; $12.50 for two to five employes: $20 for six to 14 employes; $30 for 15 to 24 employes; $40 for 25 to 49 employes; and $60 for 50 or more employes

Indira's gain is India's loss

Because the "world's largest democracy" has consistently behaved as if it also deserved the title of the world's most righteous nation, others may feel a certain grim satisfaction in the fact that when it came to the ultimate test that separates a true democracy from a sham — the choice between the rule of law and the rule of men (or in this case, of a woman) — India has shown itself capable of descending into a state of political repression that ranks with any extant today.

But that aside, the dictatorial powers assumed by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in the name of defending India but actually to perpetuate herself in office can only be viewed with sorrow and dismay.

If India joins the lengthening list of emergent nations that have taken the road to totalitarianism, what hope is there for freedom anywhere in the so-called Third World for which India was in many ways the model?

The answer depends upon how deeply rooted democracy really is on the subcontinent and how grievously Mrs. Gandhi may have injured it. The answer presumably will become known at the end of summer when the reconvening Indian Supreme Court decides whether or not to uphold a regional court decision that found Mrs. Gandhi guilty of illegal election practices and ordered her stripped of her seat in Parliament and, in consequence, of the prime ministership.

In the meantime, she continues to rule by virtue of a stay of the court's order, by a proclamation of a national emergency and by a display of brute force which has seen the jailing of reportedly thousands of her political opponents.

Should the high court rule against Mrs. Gandhi, and should she abide by its decision, the crisis would be resolved with what can be hoped would be a strengthening of democratic institutions in India. Or should the court vindicate her, as it is widely believed it will, the crisis would also be resolved, but with what lasting harm to India it would be difficult to predict.

The worst scenario has Mrs. Gandhi defying an adverse ruling, plunging her country deeper into dictatorship and not inconceivably fomenting a civil war.

Many unhappy things could happen before then, however, in the intervening two months.

Since gaining its independence from Britain after World War II, India has been virtually a one-party democracy. Opposition to the overwhelmingly predominant Congress Party has always been weak and fragmented. But the failure of the party to make significant headway against India's abiding problems of population and poverty and economic stagnation and growing popular discontent with widespread corruption in recent years, capped now by the outright suppression of political freedom and Mrs. Gandhi's foolish creation of political martyrs, could result in a dangerous national mood that will not wait upon the word of a handful of judges.

Whether she remains prime minister, legally or illegally, or whether she relinquishes her rule, voluntarily or involuntarily, if nothing else Indira Gandhi has by her actions in a few crucial days forfeited the mantle she once wore both as the respected leader of the world's largest democracy and as a spokesman for law and morality in the community of nations.

Comparison

A national peace organization has compared the Defense Department budget with the Baltimore city budget. The one towers over the other in such disporportion that comparisons are not easy. Baltimore's entire operating budget of just over $800 million is not much more than the one-year development costs of the controversial B-1 bomber ($749 million), and the city's education budget of $232.8 million costs little more than two Navy fleet oilers. Baltimore's $13.2 million for its Urban Services Agency, the former Model Cities and antipoverty programs combined, is $2 million less than the cost of one F-15 fighter plane. Defense commands high national priority, while cities struggle with only partial federal help to meet human needs. Money for all levels of government comes from the same pockets, so the priorities in reality are our own, as Americans. The national organization is called SANE — A Citizens' Organization for a Sane World. It still has a way to go. - The Sun (Baltimore)

If any one thinks he is religious, and does not bridle his tongue but deceives his heart, this man's religion is vain. Religion that is pure and undefiled before God and the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their affliction, and to keep oneself unstained from the world. — James 1:26-27.

"Everything for which democracy stands is based on relilious faith. Neither enlightened self-interest nor practical ethics can make an effective substitute." — Elbert D. Thomas, former U.S. Senator.

U.S. ready to use nuclear arms

WASHINGTON — The armed forces are prepared to use tactical nuclear weapons if President Ford should call for them, not only to repel aggression but also to respond to "minor incidents."

In public, Defense Secretary James Schlesinger has emphasized that any use of nuclear weapons would be an "agonizing decision" which would be made only in the event of "major, major hostilities."

But competent sources insist that the President has been given the additional "option" of using tactical nukes in a minor crisis. The new policy is intended to increase his flexibility.

If it had been impossible to recapture the Mayaguez and rescue the crew, for example, the President could have threatened a limited nuclear blow to obtain the ship's release.

This doesn't mean, of course, that the President would ever resort to such a chilling threat. But our sources point out that President Ford is less in awe of nuclear weapons than any man who has occupied the White House since Harry

Once a nuclear threat is made, the policymakers fully understand that the United States must be prepared to carry it out. The armed forces, for their part, are ready. The Strategic Air Command began briefing missile and bomber wings months ago on the new Nuclear Weapons Employment Policy, or NUWEP as the missilemen call it.

During these briefings, the possible use of nuclear weapons in a "minor crisis" was specifically discussed. It is possible to hit extremely small targets with low-yield weapons. An oil refinery or industrial complex, for example, could be leveled in one swift nuclear strike without doing serious damage to the nearby population.

Here is a hypothetical scenario, which was presented at the

A crisis develops. Diplomatic approaches are made to settle it, but the peaceful efforts fail. Then the President has the option of brandishing his nuclear weapons.

He could set forth his demands, issue the nuclear ultimatum and set a deadline. If the demands were not met within the time period, he could order a tactical nuclear strike.

The appropriate missile or bomber wing would receive a "LNO package," containing their instructions. This means Limited Nuclear Option.

Once the President gave the green light, the nuclear blow would be delivered. In preparation for this possibility, missile and bomber crews are now practicing dozens of complicated new missions. The training is supposed to be completed by January 1.

Footnote: On June 20, we reported that Schlesinger had advocated the use of nuclear weapons, as on option, to repel an invasion of South Korea. After our story appeared, he was asked about it at a press conference. Would the United States "use nuclear weapons against North Korea if they invade South Korea"? a reporter inquired.

"We cannot foreclose any option," replied Schlesinger.

Five days later, the same question was put point-blank to President Ford. The nuclear option, Ford responded, would be used "in a flexible way in our national interest."

FORD'S SECRET — Ford Motor Company apparently spotted manufacturing errors that caused body rust in some of its 12 million 1969-1972 automobiles and light trucks. But the unfortunate owners were never notified.

This is implied in a confidential memo, dated August 25, 1972, which has just come to light. The memo was sent only to Ford's most trusted consumer service managers. In effect, these managers were instructed to withhold the problem not only from the customers but also the dealers.

They were authorized to provide free or cut-rate repairs, however, if the customers squawked loudly enough.

"This is a limited service program without dealership notification and should be administered on an individual complaint basis," declared the document. For the first 24 months, said the document, there "will be 100 per cent coverage of repair cost...and 75 per cent from the 25th to 36th month."

Of course, this offer to repair the rust damage has now expired on almost all the 1969-1972 cars. It is too late, therefore, for the owners of rusted-out cars to get free repairs.

Meanwhile, Ford saved millions by keeping quiet about the rust-out problems.

Footnote: A Ford spokesman denied that the rust was caused by manufacturing faults, saying that weather, road salt and owner care were responsible. The repairs were allowed, he said, to promote "owner loyalty and good will." He couldn't explain, however, why the dealers were kept in the dark about this alleged effort to promote good will.

The Center for Auto Safety, claiming that Ford may not be the only company with "secret extended warranties," has asked the Federal Trade Commission to force public revelation of repair offers.

One of those voting against Powell was Commissioner Colston Lewis who, it now turns out, has a few skeletons in his own closet. Despite an EEOC statute against political campaigning on government time, Lewis beat the bushes across the country for Richard Nixon in 1972.

Doc Peirsol Just in jest

In the days when I flunked a college course labeled "Econ 2," it was generally conceded that the price of things was predicated on supply and demand. Today I say phooey on that prof who flunked me. What did he know about the finer points of economics? The truth is supply and demand has little if anything to do with the price of things. And we would probably be a lot better off today if the master minds who are now directing the well being of this country had also flunked the economic facts of life as taught by those old professors. Take the present peanut surplus as a classic example. Since we are only using about two-thirds of this year's crop, it is going to cost the taxpayers between $125,000,000 and $150,000,000 in subsidies to the peanut farmers to buy up and dispose of the over supply. - And yet today the average price of peanut butter in our supermarkets if $1.42 a pound as compared with last year's price of $1.25.

Tom Tiede She loses life on her own terms

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — In its sense the letter from Phyllis Rail is a gem. It has arrived on my desk in a pile of missives less precious, hand-written, partly printed. It is a note of extraordinary pathos yet, though the word is much abused and thus diminished in a world that uses it selfishly, courage.

Courage

Ms. Rail — I am unaware if she ever married, I know nothing of her save this letter — introduces herself as a resident of Crescent City, Calif. Fifty-nine years old. And dying of cancer.

"Three weeks ago," she writes, "I was given a diagnosis of massive bronchiogenic carcinoma of the left lung. The diagnosis found unanimous agreement. It was the desire of the specialist to hospitalize me immediately and institute an elaborate program of treatments which he felt would give me a chance of living for from six to eighteen months longer than I will live anyway. I refused treatment. I would like you to know the reasons why."

Can there be reasons for one to elect to live a shorter time? Ms. Rail says money, of course, the lack of it, is one. "I object to the time, money and effort that are often spent in this country to keep terminal patients alive, sometimes in agony or in a state of unconsciousness. The bills in these cases are occasionally known to run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. I am not able to personally afford hospitalization of this dimension."

Her bill could be paid, she adds, through medical insurance, but only thereby at the expense of others. "Whensums such as $30,000 are paid by insurance companies for single individuals, the rates go up for everyone and can bring serious hardship to poorer working class families with children."

But there is another reason, she continues, for choosing to die with grace and dignity, and it has to do, for her, with a seldom mentioned facet of the American psychology: the arrogant national predilection for putting the welfare of our citizens over the welfare of people elsewhere. Ms. Rail raises the issue, as follows, in protest, one might say in this case in ultimate protest:

"At the time of World War II the United States garnered a rich heritage of brilliant scientific minds and artistic talent when we permitted immigration of Jews and others from Hitlerian Europe. That was one matter. The present "BRAIN DRAIN" is a very different one. I object very strongly to the U.S. immigration policy which gives preference to those highly skilled immigrants whose coming here constitutes serious problems in their homelands."

"According to a report by the United Nations in 1974, the U.S. in 1970, permitted the immigration of 3,141 doctors and scientists from India alone. This was estimated as representing a gain to the U.S. of $900 million for that year alone. Naturally, it also represented a much greater momentary and creative loss for India. I believe these facts are abhorrent.

"I feel that the most rudimentary decency requires that acceptance of immigration of trained professionals from the developing countries be terminated at once by the U.S. To permit an influx of trained and talented people from countries where their services are sorely needed by populations far less privileged than America's is in direct opposition to our founding principles."

And so, concludes the writer, "I find that I definitely do not wish to have large amounts of money nor the time of medical experts spent in the gamble to prolong my life. There are far too many better things to be done with the money and expertise."

Courage? As mentioned before, we dilute the word in application to politicians and athletes. It should be reserved for better occasions, and people. Unfortunately in Phyllis Rail's case, it can now only be applied to her in the past tense. Her letter, which just recently arrived, was postmarked Nov. 27 from California. Somehow it's been lost these months in the mail.

She has since died, her family says. But her way.

Fair Trade laws should be halted

Copley News Service
One of the old-time ventriloquist tricks in vaudeville was done by the fellow who'd sing a chorus of "Yankee Doodle Dandy" while drinking a glass of water.

Another version is even trickier: a business or industry argues for free enterprise on the one hand — free, that is, from government regulation — at the same time it asks government to make laws setting minimum prices on the products it sells. This trick is called "fair trade."

Though such laws date back to the turn of the century, federal courts knocked them out in 1911.

They came back 20 years later when California retail druggists were worried about price wars and sought minimum-price legislation to prevent them. Soon after, 43 other states enacted so-called "fair trade" laws.

More recently there have been indications that this trick may be going the way of the vaudeville act. It is estimated that only about 20 large companies use the laws extensively today. Several states have done away with them entirely. Just the same, 14 states, representing nearly half the nation's retail sales, still have tough, enforceable fair trade laws. This means that a retailer who wants to sell a fair trade item below the minimum price may risk heavy fines or even a jail sentence for cutting his price to the consumer.

Big discount chains usually won't sign fair trade agreements, but small retailers may fear being cut off from supplies of popular brands if they don't observe the fair trade agreements they are asked to sign. It used to be argued that fair trade

It used to be argued that fair trade laws helped small retailers, such as the corner grocer, from being severely undercut by big chains with superior buying power. It's more likely that independent neighborhood retailers are surviving today because they are convenient than because of a few cents difference in price on a brand of liquor or lipstick or water glasses.

Pro-fair trade forces argue that the higher margins provided the retailer by fair trade laws result in more retailers carrying the line, and with a broader selection at that.

That may be true, but in an age when advertising has effectively presold so many brand names, is the retailer really providing any extra useful service to the consumer in exchange for that higher margin? It's nice to know that he carries a broad selection, but without fair trade, wouldn't an enterprising merchant carry as broad a line of, say, cosmetics as his customers demand?

Former Atty. Gen. William Saxbe said in a recent speech to a grocery manufacturing group, "Whatever feeble justification may have once existed for fair trade, there is today no reason to place such heavy burdens on the consuming public."

Lately, there has been a lot of talk about taking a "hard look" at government regulation in order to weed out those regulations which stifle competition. Good. Let's include the fair trade laws in that review.

Once you invite government to regulate you, in order to protect your economic interests, you're asking for a lot more regulation down the line.

We live in a time when the barnacles of government regulation have added measurably to the cost of goods we buy. Let's rethink the fair trade laws altogether. Eliminate them and some prices should begin going down as a result. That may not "lick" inflation, but it would help.

Rabbit must think that she's Tarzan

DEAR DR. MILLER: Racquel Rabbit has suddenly gone crazy. She's pulling all the hair out of her chest. Goodness! What should I do with her? — P.V.

DEAR P.V. (and other readers of this column): Whenever the condition of an animal seems urgent, contact a local expert instead of writing a letter to me. Otherwise you may be too late. Fortunately for Racquel Rabbit, her hairless chest probably didn't denote a real emergency. Usually this activity in female rabbits is related to nest-building behavior, when that project, the female rabbit puts off further pulling indefinitely. (Occasionally, a skin disease could be involved where a bare-breasted doe is concerned, but these cases are uncommon.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We've just gone through the terrible experience of losing a dog to distemper, and certainly don't want that to happen again. We've put a deposit on a seven-week-old Schnauzer pup and are anxious to bring it home as soon as we can. How long do we have to wait before it would be safe in the house to have a puppy? -

DEAR S.R.: The puppy's vaccinations should begin at once and be carried through in strict accordance with your veterinarian's directions. Probably a month or so would be an appropriate wait to allow time for the vaccinations to become effective and for the distemper virus, which may still remain in the house after a thorough cleanup, to have been destroyed by being air-dried.

How many women have you known by the name of Elizabeth? If you can't think of at least seven, you must've lived the life of a hermit. Or so says our Name Game man. He also reckons you've probably known seven men named Robert. And at least five girls and boys each named Carol and James. Those are the statistical odds among acquaintances, at any rate.

a Harry Truman who also could sing the melody. Q. "WHAT'S the real name of actress Dyan Cannon?" A. She was born Samille Diane Friesen.

A boozer is a destroyer

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure my husband is an alcoholic but he denies it. The man can drink half a fifth every night after supper. According to him it's better than sleeping pills. (He has had insomnia for several years and the doctor suggested a glass of wine or whisky at bedtime.)

I say anyone who drinks that much booze every night of his life is an alcoholic. After two drinks he gets mean, starts fights and makes longdistance telephone calls to people all over the country. When the bills come in he wants to know who made the calls. He doesn't even remember speaking to these people, much less what he said

Please, Ann, give me a definition of an alcoholic. I need to know whether I'm right or wrong. -Tough Sledding.

Dear Tough: One of the best definitions of an alcoholic was written by Dr. Will Menninger many years ago. Here it is: "Alcoholism is a character disorder marked by repeated excessive drinking to such a degree that the individual's own efficiency or happiness is severely impaired and the relationships in his family, in his business and with his friends are jeopardized."

Dear Ken: I say deliver me from Advice to the Lovelord." I'll settle for "Human Relations Columnist." I don't need to be an "analyst." Thanks anyway.

Dear Ann Landers: The incometax deadline has long since passed but I'm still mad enough about those cockeyed forms to write to Ann Landers.

I wish the government would get something straight. The "housewives" in this country are not "unemployed." We are pretty damned busy.

According to the Random House College Dictionary to be "unemployed" is "to be unoccupied, or jobless." I am none of those things and neither are millions of other women who cook, clean, wash, iron, chase kids, sew on buttons, can, freeze and hunt bargains. Anyone who has the nutty idea that that the woman who stays home is "unemployed" ought to follow me around from 7:00 a.m. until 11:00 p.m. They'd get an eyeful. - D.L.K.

Causes of low blood sugar

DEAR DR. LAMB - We have just found out after a glucose tolerance test of four hours that my wife has or is a hypoglycemic. Her test results were: First hour, 110; second hour, 80; third hour, 36; and fourth hour,

The doctor here is treating her as a diabetic, but with no medication, just an 1800 calorie diet with six meals a day. But she is very tired 90 per cent of the time. The doctor said this was just the opposite of diabetes. We would appreciate anything you could tell us

DEAR READER - It would be interesting to know why your wife had a glucose tolerance test. Was she actually having symptoms of low blood sugar? When I first tested athletes, I was surprised how many endurance athletes had relatively low blood sugar levels on repeated tests but had no symptoms at all and were in optimal health. These young men were in training for the Olympics. The point here is that the blood glucose level is not always a reliable indicator of how much glucose is getting into the cells and that is what counts.

A diabetic can have relative hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) even when the blood level is quite high, because the level is not high enough for him with his problem of getting glucose into the cell.

In general, it is true that low blood sugar (hypoglycemia) is the opposite of diabetes. There are several different ways low blood sugar can be caused. Some diabetics have episodes of low blood sugar because the islets of Langerhand, where insulin is formed, are not functioning right and release too much insulin at the wrong time. Later the islets get worse and true diabetes develops. So, low blood sugar and diabetes can be part of the same disease problem.

What you mean by treating your wife like a diabetic is also of interest. Most people think that a diabetic should be treated by avoiding carbohydrates. That idea is on the way out. Many diabetic specialists today think that a person with diabetes should restrict the fat intake and use more carbohydrate in the diet. This may help to prevent heart and vascular disease so common in diabetics.

The carbohydrate recommended, though, for foods, such as fresh vegetables, fruits, salads, and cereals. You can usually use these foods, even when low blood sugar is the problem.

I would guess your doctor wants to decrease your wife's weight and also to provide her with small continuous feedings to avoid attacks of low blood sugar. That is good practice. The fatigue may be a symptom of her low blood glucose. If she can tolerate it, a regular program of mild to moderate physical activity may help relieve some of her fatigue. Too much exercise could use up her glucose and make her blood sugar fall still more. Walking and general light exercise, though, sometimes help to mobilize fat and other food stores that provide energy The treatment for low blood sugar depends on what is causing it. For more information about hypoglycemia, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. and ask for The Health Letter number 3-9 on Low Blood Sugar. Send a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and 50 cents for mailing and costs.

Property value in San Joaquin hits $26 billion

FRESNO (AP) - Private property in the San Joaquin Valley is worth more than $26 billion, annual county assessments show.

Assessed valuations on which property taxes are based increased more than $800 million this fiscal year to a total of $6.5 billion.

County assessments theoretically represent 25 per cent of real market value, leading to a $26 billion value of real and personal property in the eight-county region. Public utility assessments will be announced later by the state Board of Equalization.

Farming is the base of the valley's economy, but for the second straight year, surging oil prices provided the assessment boost that gave Kern County the area's lead. Increased oil values based on a $1.05 per barrel price increase last fall provided $217 million of Kern's $351 million increase in assessments.

Kern County's assessed valuation totals $1.8 billion, which is $300 million more than reported by Fresno County, the leader until oil prices began soaring in 1973.

The only other valley county reporting more than $1 billion in assessments for 1975-76 is San Joaquin, just over $1 billion for the first time.

LONDON (AP) - Britain's state-run National Health Service - NHS once vaunted as the world's best socialized medicare system, is near collapse and only a massive cash transfusion can save it, doctors claimed Monday.

What Keeps an Athlete

"At this year's Spanish Open, trailing by a stroke on the last hole, a par 5, Palmer uncorked a perfect drive down the center of the fairway. His second shot, a four-iron, carried to within seven feet of the flag.

He calmly putted the wet ball home. It was the first time in his career that Palmer had ever won a tournament with an eagle on the final hole."

Arnold Palmer at 45:

Pancho Gonzales and Willie Shoemaker, who are all over 40, things haven't slowed down a great deal either. "Arnie's Army" continues to grow in number. Although Gonzales is retired from professional competition, he still plays a key role in his sport as director of tennis at Caesars Palace. Willie "the Shoe" at 43 is the winningest jockey in history (last month he rode the winner in the Belmont Stakes). All three men could certainly afford to retire, but a unique motivation drives them on. Read why the will to win is as keen for them now as it was when they began their professional careers, in this week's FAMILY WEEKLY.

Business brief

SEATTLE (AP) The Boeing Co. sold 28 fewer commercial jetliners in the first six months of the year than during the same period in 1974, the company said.

Because of inflation and the higher cost of six military versions of the Boeing 707, the value of the 8 jets ordered during the first half of the year total $1.2 billion, compared with the $1.28 billion for the 110 planes sold during the same period last year.

Grape boycott said failure

INDIO (AP) - A calm hovers over the Coachella Valley as the rich 1975 table grape crop is harvested.

Growers say the latest nationwide boycott sponsored by Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union against non-UFW picked grapes has had little economic effect, and observers believe the UFW will have to wait until next year to battle here for con-

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s historic farm labor law allowing workers the right to choose their own union representation by secret ballot becomes effective Aug. 28.

By then, the four-month season here will be over and farm laborers will have moved north to the San Joaquin Valley, where the first clash between the UFW and Teamsters Union is expected to come.

Chavez says he would like the Coachella's growers to grant representation elections before Aug. 28. He has had no success. A key to his campaign is the boycott. However, it has had little public impact, though it is 2 years old, and it is unlikely now that growers can be pressured by it.

barked on a 1,000-mile march through Southern California to drum up support for the UFW for post-August elections.

'There's nothing Chavez can do in the Coachella Valley this year," says Mike Bozick of the Bagdasarian Co., a major grower with a Teamster contract. "He has to make his move in the San Joa-

Elections probably won't be held here until next April, when the Coachella vineyards return to peak employment. While the Teamster contracts don't expire until April 1977, the new law provides for elections after Aug. 28 if workers petition for them. In years past there have been bloody clashes between UFW and valley, but this year's $30 million crop was marked by only scattered picketing.

The UFW has only one contract - it lost others to the Teamsters in 1972-73 among the Coachella's 55 growers. But the lone pact belongs to the valley's largest grower. David Freedman & Co., Inc., of Thermal.

Freedman's president. Lionel Steinberg, says his operation accounts for about 16 per cent of the valley's grapes, while the Teamster's 27 growers, some of whom subcontract their workers out to other vinyards, harvest about 80 per cent.

Teamster workers earn $2.54 an hour: UFW workers, $2.60.

Things to see and do in Southland Comet's return could be fizzle

SPORTING @ GOODS

(AP) - Astronomers say people awaiting the return of Halley's Comet in 1986 shouldn't expect a celestial extravaganza. It might be another Kohoutek.

Two comet experts say the interplay of several factors probably will dull the greatly anticipated return of the world's most popular comet, last seen in 1910. This could mean Halley will be no more spectacular than last year's disappointing Comet Kohoutek.

The latest orbital calculations indicate Halley's Comet will pass almost three times farther away from the earth than on its previous visit, the astronomers say.

To complicate things even further, the comet's greatest brightness and CAMBRIDGE, Mass. longest tail will occur below the plane of the earth's equator, making seeing it from the Northern Hemisphere more difficult and less exciting, they say.

"We merely remark that if you were disappointed by Comet Kohoutek in eary 1974, don't have high hopes for a fine display of Comet Halley," the astronomers write in the June issue of Sky and Telescope, the astronomy journal.

Dr. Brian G. Marsden of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics here and Dr. Robert G. Roosen of the Joint Observatory for Cometary Research in New Mexico say another reason the longawaited event might be diminished is increased light pollution.

The authors cited a University of California study that showed total outdoor illumination increased 10 times from 1960 to 1970.

"If that growth rate holds until 1986, some cities by then will be bathed in permanent twilight," the astronomers said, "with only the brightest stars and planets visible near city centers."

Roosen said in an interview that many people who saw Halley's Comet in 1910 were disappointed, saying it wasn't as spectacular as advanced publicity built it up to be.

'The reason we did the article is that people are already calling observatories to get in-formation on Halley's comet," Roosen said.

King Kong will keep Bowl quiet

LOS ANGELES (AP) -The legendary King Kong has been enlisted to keep noisy airplanes from drowning out concerts at the Hollywood Bowl.

Posters showing King Kong plucking small planes from the air are being distributed to area airports during the summer concert series.

They are being distributed by Alan Rosenfield, 23, a flight instructor and usher at the bowl for the past eight Bowl officials for years have urged pilots to avoid the area during the summer concerts of the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

Officials said commercial pilots avoid the bowl. but sometimes private pilots are not aware of the noise problem for the openair concerts.

Toll-takers accept strange items 'in lieu of payment'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Golden Gate Bridge tolltakers decided the onearmed man needed a hand. so they accepted his set of golf clubs in lieu of payment.

It was just one example of what the bridge administration will accept from people who can't cough up the 75-cent toll.

The one-armed man's clubs were beautiful, recalled Sgt. Charles J. Jalivet of the toll security force, "but when we looked inside we found the guy's false arm. I guess he used it when he played golf."
Had the clubs and arm not been retrieved by the owner, they would have been auctioned off with other booty recently.

Among the items to go on cigarette lighters, cocktail shaker, electric sunlamp, horse brush, Bible, and wilted six-foot Christmas

"I remember one man who gave us his frying pan," said Jalivet. "Then he handed us four frozen steaks and said, 'You might as well take these, too, because I have nothing to cook them in.'

"Some folks minus the cash offer the very clothes off their backs," said Jalivet, "but we aren't allowed to take clothes.'

"Barter" in lieu of toll is accepted, said Jalivet, "if a guy comes in here with a chip on his shoulder or if he's a regular." But the usual action taken when a motorist hasn't the money is a citation ordering him to come up with the cash within 48 hours, he said.

CHP crackdown on jaywalking

SACRAMENTO (AP) -The parents of youthful jaywalkers will be hearing soon from the California Highway Patrol.

CHP Commissioner Glen Craig said Tuesday the patrol is expanding its informal citation program to cover juveniles who violate pedestrian laws.

The citations will be mailed to parents along with safety information, Craig said. In cases of 15to-17-year-olds, an officer would keep the present option of referring serious cases to juvenile court.

The informal citation procedure was started in 1973 for bicycle safety violations. Craig credited it with a slight drop in the death and injury rate from bicycle accidents.

Police bicycle patrols reducing crime rate LINDSAY, Calif. (AP) -Pedaling policemen have helped give this small central California farming town one of the lowest crime rates in the area, Chief John Beene says. Beene calls the bicycle patrols, now five years old, the "ultimate compromise between walking the beat and the automobile." The bicycle patrolman can cover just about as much territory on his 10speed as his more conventionally conveyed officers in patrol cars, Beene said. The crime-busting secret is in the silence of his approach and the view the officer gets from his padded seat, the chief added. "It's questionable how much the officer sees from a car. And the noise he makes alerts anyone in the commission of a crime."

Beene says from one to four bike-mounted officers sally forth each day in this two-square-mile community of 5,000. Most bike patrols cruise residential neighborhoods beginning at 8 a.m., then shift to business sections after

Joyce Brothers Effective fighting

directly and then I, of course, attack him. We've always both been fighters, even before we married. but it's getting worse. What's more, it's getting boring because how many times can you fight about the same things? For instance, I know he's only using this not having children as a weapon, but he's beginning to convince himself that unless a couple has children, they can't possibly be happy. I'm afraid that he's talking himself into the idea that our marriage is doomed to

Dear V.M.: Your're probably quite correct in assuming that your husband is simply using the fact that you don't have children as an excuse. However, you might be interested in knowing that a recent study revealed that some of the happiest married couples are those without children. This same study also indicted that all the pains and sorrows associated with children leaving home to lead their own lives may be more myth than reality.

failure because we can't have children. V.M.

Among the childless married couples interviewed in the 18 to 29-yearold bracket, 88 per cent of the women and 72 per cent of the men said they were satisifed with life as a whole. Among the over-29 couples, 69 per cent of the women and 75 per cent of the men said they were content.

If you and your husband have been quarreling since before you were married, there must be something about quarreling that you both enjoy. Try to analyze what it is and once you're aware of just what this need is, ask yourself if there might not be other and perhaps better ways in which it could be satisfied.

Dr. Millard J. Bienvenu says that learning to fight is a valuable skill to acquire before marriage, if possible. It's perfectly normal to differ with someone, but it's essential to a healthy relationship that arguments be constructive. The fact that you and your husband keep going over and over the same subjects of disagreement indicates to me that nothing is ever resolved and that your quarrels are not only destructive, but that neither of you has learned how to fight.

Dr. Bienvenu warns quarreling couples to stick to the issues that orginally triggered the argument and not to revive previous issues or hurts. Don't hit below the belt by criticizing and attacking each other as persons. The kind of battle where couples swing out in their way ends up getting nowhere and it also erodes positive emotional qulities. Don't fight when yo're tired, hungry, or just in a bad mood, generally, because if you do, your chances for a constructive discussion drop to zero.

Don't fight or argue about issues that aren't important just to continue in action. This is dangerous because it can become a habit, as it seems to be in your relationship. In other words, try to develop a new respect for each other's words, and use words, not to whip, beat or destroy each other, but to enhance understanding and help release feelings and tensions that have been bottled up and passed over.

It sounds to me as if destructive combat has become a kind of game with you and your husband. Admit it, and find some new and better games that will improve your relationship and enlarge your marriage.

The scamp of 'Scapino'

By DICK KLEINER HOLLYWOD - (NEA) Jim Dale stood Los Angeles on its head when he came here in the crazily funny "Scapino." If this had been the Hollywood of 20 years ago, he would have been scooped up and made an instant star.

But this is Hollywood 1975 and neither the town nor the people are the same. He says he's had some offers - but he hasn't taken any.

'It would be easy to make a lot of money," says the magnificently talented young Englishman, "but I'm not in it for the money.

'Early on, when we didn't have the money for a tin of beans, I had an offer for something I didn't want to do. So I told my wife and Some wives make their husbands take whatever comes along for the money, but not Patricia. "Now I can afbut not ford two tins of beans. He says he likes to try everything, because he's an actor. In his years of work, he's tried a lot of things. He was a disc jockey for several years ("not because I wanted to be a disc jockey, but because I wanted to know what it felt like to be a disc jockey.") He was a pop singer for a while ("and very successful - I could stand back from myself. while thousands of teenagers screamed, and say, Remember this - someday you'll say it never happened.' but it did happen.')

He's a writer, songwriter, singer, actor, comic. He loves it all. Excels in it all. Even he isn't sure where his ultimate fame lies but you can be sure of one thing - Jim Dale is going to be a household word in one field or another.

Jazz

to meet

The Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz-East will stage "Salute to Louis," tribute to Louis Armstrong, at its regular meeting from 2 to 7 p.m. Sunday at the Moose Lodge, 5797 Picker St., Riverside.

Guests will be two men who knew and performed with the late jazz great, Joe Darensbourg and Andrew Blakeney.

They are members of the internationally known Legends of Jazz and have just completed a successful tour of Europe. The band was so well received that it has been booked for a repeat tour in 1976.

Darenbourg's career dates back to early traveling medicine shows, Fate Marable's Riverboat Band and later with Kid Ory and Louis Armstrong's All Stars. Blakeney was selected by Joe "King" Oliver to replace Armstrong when Satchmo left Oliver's band in Chicago in 1924. Blakeney's horn was heard for many years with Kid Ory.

Joining these two stars will be the well known Sammy Lee, saxophonist, who appeared as guest star at SPDJ-E in June. This group will be on stage in the late afternoon as featured band.

All is not quiet on the clubhouse front

NEW YORK (AP) — It seems only fair, with baseball managers and players ganging up on writers and broadcasters, to repeat here an axiom often forgotten by the fun-andgames fraternity.

No writer ever hit a home run to win a game or made an error to lose one. No writer ever pitched a shutout or hit into a double play. So don't blame the journalists when things go bad. They're not responsible, any more than they can take the credit when things go well.

In recent weeks, Managers Ralph Houk, Billy Martin and Wes Westrum have taken out ball club frustrations on the writers.

Houk, who has traveled this trail before, got so excited that he allegedly manhandled one reporter, dragging him clear across the Detroit Tigers' locker room to the newsman filed a formal complaint, Houk wound up in a Baltimore courtroom, explaining the whole thing to a judge.

Martin barred a Dallas writer from the Texas Rangers' dressing room, blaming him for instigating a clubhouse fight that involved a couple of his players. Westrum evicted a St. Louis reporter, who did not demonstrate the proper solemnity when he entered the San Francisco Giants' dressing room after a loss to the Car-

The Boston Red Sox, objecting to some printed criticism, tossed a writer out of their dressing room and a Minnesota team broadcaster got into an unpleasant scene with some Twins players.

COMMENTARY

Pomona, California Thursday, July 10, 1975

Writers Association of America have formally protested the dressing room shenanigans to Commissioner

But really, this is nothing new. Ever since the first newspaper editor decided that his readers might enjoy an account about how the local athletes were doing each day, there has been a more or less adversary relationship between the players and the press.

Managers are fiercely loyal to their players and when a team is going badly, one way out for the pilot is to look for a common enemy. What better target than those troublesome writers who come around asking all those questions after the games?

A dressing room can be a dangerous place. One ex-major leaguer threw buckets of water at guised in a big league uniform delighted in giving a hot foot to unsuspecting writers.

One team celebrated July 4 by tossing firecrackers around their dressing room as writers ducked and dodged. A utility infielder on another club killed some pregame time by setting fire to the shoelaces of one of his teammates, who didn't notice the blaze until some of the other players began making fire engine sounds.

Charming.

It seems time for the commissioner and the individual clubs to crack down and order a halt to the locker room carryings-on. A ball player or manager who can't act like an adult ought to be fined or perhaps even suspended. Let them take out their aggressions and frustrations on each other, not the media whose job it is to report their games.

'Kiddie Korps' gets Halos a win

PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM - Chalk up one for the Kiddie Korps!

The Angels are so young that, after a come-from-behind 3-2 win over Baltimore Wednesday night, Frank Tanana kidded reliever Don Kirkwood about his advanced age.

Tanana was 22 July 3. The baby faced Kirkwood will be 25 in September. But Tanana (7-5) is rapidly becoming a polished pitcher. Kirkwood was credited with his sixth save (five more than any other reliever on the staff).

Although Kirkwood is nearly three years older than Tanana, he has less major league experience. Tanana is in his second full year while Kirkwood is a rookie.

'That old man can pitch,' grinned Tanana nodding toward Kirkwood. "He's 30 years old and in his first year in the big leagues.

Kirkwood used to look like a 15year-old. Now he has grown a mustache and looks like a 15-year-old with a mustache

The Halo team that was on the field in the Baltimore ninth consisted of the following: Dave Chalk (24) at third; Mike Miley (22) at short; Jerry Remy (22) at second; John Doherty (23) at first; Morris Nettles (23) in left; Mickey Rivers (27) in center; and two "old men" of 29, Ellie Rodriguez.

The game-winning hit was a pinchhit triple by Dave Collins (22).

Collins batted for John Balaz (24) with one out and runners on first and second in the Angel eighth. He picked on a 1-1 pitch by Doyl Alexander and lined a shot to right field. "I was looking for a ball inside," explained the switch-hitting Collins. I like the ball inside when I'm hitting lefthanded. I got it and I think he (Alexander) got it up higher than he wanted.

Then he added modestly, "This is still my first time around (the league) and Baltimore may not have known how to pitch me.

With a .318 average, five doubles and two triples in just 110 times at bat, you can bet clubs will make it a point to try and find out how to pitch to the young speedster.

Collins credits coach Grover Resinger with helping him since he joined the Angels "I was tight when I first came up."

he admitted. "But I was lucky to have some hits fall in for me. Then, after about a week, I got with Grover and he had me choke up on the bat a little and I started to hit line drives like I had in the minors. I should hit well because of my speed.

Manager Dick Williams agreed. 'He's always hit .300 or better, the manager said. "He has good speed. That's an asset. Of course we have some other guys on this team that don't utilize it like he does. But he looks like he'll be a good major league hitter. He makes contact from both sides

The Halos took a 1-0 lead in the sixth inning on a walk to Chalk and singles by Winston Llenas and Rodriguez. It held up until the eighth when the Orioles scored twice in a freakish inning.

Tanana got the first two outs easily and had an 0-2 count on Don Baylor. But the second strike was a long foul down the left field line and brought Williams out of the dugout on the run. Tanana then got too careful and walked Baylor.

pitch that hit the plate and bounced high in the air. Rodriguez couldn't find it and Blair wound up at second and Baylor at third.

Paul Blair struck out on a wild

Ancient Brooks Robinson hauled his 38 years and .197 average to the plate and banged a two-run single.

But it was Robinson's bad throw that put Stanton on leading off the Angel half of the inning. Chalk sacrificed him to second. Dovle Alexander replaced Ross Grimsley

(5-10) when Grimsley's first two pitches to Llenas were balls. Joe Lahoud replaced Llenas and walked. That set the stage for Collins' heroics. But Tanana got into trouble himself in the ninth. He retired Mark Belanger but gave up a hit to Ken Singleton. Williams yanked him and drew boos for his effort. Tanana was given a standing ovation as he walked off. Kirkwood gave up a hit to Bobby Grich but got the dangerous Tommy Davis and Lee May 'I didn't have my good heat (fastball) or curve tonight," Tanana said. 'Also, it was hot and hard to grip the ball. With the weak bleep I had tonight, I was glad to give up only two runs. Tanana threw 140 pitches, walked six and struck out nine. The nine gives him 137 in 120 innings and he trails league leading Nolan Ryan by "I tell you what," Tanana said. "I consider myself ahead (better) of the other guys in the league. But Nolie is struggling or he might have 200 strikeouts by now.

Fans put Nettles on third base starters in all six years of fan voting.

NEW YORK (AP)-A last-minute burst of support by Yankee fans has given dark horse Graig Nettles the starting spot at third base in the American League lineup for the 1975 All-Star Game.

Nettles, ranked fourth a week ago, attracted a total of 1,181,583 votes to outdistance runnerup Sal Bando of Oakland and last week's leader, Buddy Bell of Cleveland, according to the voting results released Thursday by the baseball commissioners of-

The Yankee infielder, an All-Star rookie, also was one of three New York players to gain a starting position in the 46th annual event, and one of five players who found themselves top-vote-getters for the first time.

New York's Thurman Munson was the runaway favorite for catcher with 2,068,535 votes, a margin of 1,093,372 over Oakland's Ray Fosse, and teammate Bobby Bonds took top honors in the outfield. Other newcomers to the leading lineup were outfielder Joe Rudi and first baseman Gene Tenace of Oakland.

Tenace, who like Nettles will be playing in the game for the first time, edged Mike Hargrove of Texas 1,241,377 votes to 1,220,904.

The five will be joined by outfielder Reggie Jackson and shortstop Bert Campaneris of Oakland, and Rod Carew of Minnesota, the league's No. 1 vote-getter in 1975 with 3,165,614. Carew and the National League's Johnny Bench are the only players to be elected as Munson has never before been a first choice in the All-Star game, but started last year as a substitute for an injured Carlton Fisk. He also appeared in the 1971 and 1973 classics.

The AL outfield contest was the hottest, with Bonds vaulting from third to first place in last week's tabulation with a total of 1,767,198 votes. He was elected the All-Star Most Valuable Player in 1973 while a San Fancisco Giant and played in 1971, but has not previously started.

Runnerup Jackson amassed 1,590,346 votes, while Rudi received

Boston rookie Fred Lynn, a writein candidate, jumped from ninth place to fourth in the final days of voting, but missed gaining an outfield position by 44,374 ballots.

The American League pitching staff, chosen by All-Star manager Alvin Dark of Oakland, will include Jim 'Catfish' Hunter of New York, Jim Palmer of Baltimore, Nolan Ryan of California, Steve Busby of Kansas City, Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers of Oakland and Jim Kaat and Rich Gossage of Chicago.

A final-week surge of votes lifted Jim Wynn of the Los Angeles Dodgers into the National League's All-Star line-up, announced Wednes-

He joins Pete Rose of Cincinnati and Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals in the NL outfield. Other NL starters are first baseman Steve Garvey of Los Angeles, Most Valuable Player in last year's game; Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati at shortstop, Roy Cey of Los Angeles at third base and Johnny Bench of Cincinnati as catcher

Manager Walt Alston named a nine-man pitching staff earlier this week, selecting Andy Messersmith, Don Sutton and Mike Marshall of the Dodgers, Tom Seaver and Jon Matlack of the Mets, Tug McGraw of Philadelphia, Phil Niekro of Atlanta, Randy Jones of San Diego and Jerry Reuss of Pittsburgh. # Four golfers break Carnoustie record

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) -The lion links of Carnoustie purred like a kitten today as Bobby Cole of South Africa and several other golfers broke the course record in the second round of the British Open golf championship.

Cole, who shared the early 36-hole lead of 138 with Tom Watson and South African Andries Oosthuizen, fired a six-under-par 66, and Watson, Australian Graham Marsh and Briton Bernard Gallacher shot 67s. The previous mark of 68 was set by

Ben Hogan 22 years ago when he won the British Open. Hogan's effort was unequalled until 1968 when Billy Casper tied it in the Open. Then firstround leader Peter Oosterhuis matched it again on Wednesday.

The course, a 7,095-yard, par-72 layout laced with Barry Burn, had been rock-hard all week and felled most of the best in the opening round, particularly during the last three holes. But an overnight rain tamed it.

Marsh's round put him one stroke back of the early pace with a 139, along with Gallacher, former U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and John Mahaffey. Irwin shot a 70-139 and Mahaffey a 68-139. Oosthuizen grabbed a share of the early lead with his second straight

Cole, 27, needed 30 putts during his round. He had seven birdies and never faltered after a bogey at the "Carnoustie suits my game because it is longer than the other courses where the Open is played,"

He had been recovering from a cold and was unhappy with his first

"I have been feeling very weak and the clubs have been feeling heavy," Cole said. "I was a bit better today. Watson birdied three holes in a row, beginning at the 12th, to go seven under par, but he took a bogey.

"The conditions are better today," Watson said. "The fairways are softer, and the ball doesn't roll off lie as much as it did yesterday. You can judge a pitch. It suits me because I'm a high hitter."

Oosthuizen had a hot spell, starting at No. 11, and birdied four of six holes. But at the 13th, a 12-foot putt jumped out of the cup and he took a bogey four.

Jack Nicklaus, heavily favored to win his third British Open title. remained in contention with a 140, four under par and two strokes off the early pace, with a second-round 71. Also at 71-140 was Jack Newton of Australia.

Nicklaus, favored to win his third British Open title, sank a 16-foot putt at the 18th for a one-under 71 and a 36-hole total of 140, four under par, and Oosterhuis got off to a good start with birdies on three of the first five

Marsh, who had an opening 72, birdied the first three holes today and eagled the 12th to go five under par. He went six under with another birdie on the 14th but the bogeyed the 17th and parred No. 18 for his 67.

Giusti helps Bucs edge Dodgers

PITTSBURGH (AP) - He isn't llamboyant or vocal like Tug McGraw. He doesn't psyche himself outwardly like Al "The Mad Hungarian" Hrabosky, but Dave Giusti says his emotional boilers fire up as well as anybody's.

"I felt even more intense tonight cause the game was on the line, because the game was on the line, and I always seem to try harder against teams like the Dodgers," he said after coming in for starter Bruce Kison and preserving the Pittsburgh Pirates' 3-2 victory over Los Angeles Wednesday night.

The victory, coupled with Philadelphia's 9-7 loss in Cincinnati, gave Pittsburgh a 51/2 game lead over the Phils in the National League East. The Dodgers fell 91/2 back of Cincinnati in the West.

The big deficit didn't seem to bother Dodger Manager Walter Alston that much. He said he wouldn't concede the NL West title to Cincinnati. "There's no way of telling how things will go," he said. "I wouldn't count my chickens too early."

Wednesday night's hero, Giusti, was a bit more excited. "The older I get the more intense I seem to get," the 35-year-old Giusti said after his 58th appearance as a major league pitcher.

Indeed, the swarthy, thickshouldered right-hander flung his glove high into the air last month in Philadelphia after walking in the winning run, but was near-perfect Wednesday night.

Kison led 3-2 into the eighth against the Dodgers' All-Star pitcher Andy Messersmith, 12-6, the loser.

After Bill Buckner singled with two outs in the eighth, Kison threw a wild pitch and ran the count to 2-0 on Jim Wynn. "That's when I decided I wanted

Dave," said Pirate Manager Danny

Giusti struck out Wynn to end the inning. In the Dodger ninth Ron Cey walked and took third on a one-out single by John Hale, who also hit a solo homer off Kison.

"Any time the Dodgers have men on first and third you have to be a trifle concerned," said Murtaugh.

However Giusti retired pinch hit-ter Leron Lee on a pop foul before Manny Mota bounced out to second baseman Rennie Stennett to end the

"Dave got me out of a jam and he got out of a jam of his own," Kison said after Giusti's ninth save. Richie Hebner drove in two runs for the Pirates, who capitalized on a pair of wild pitches by Messersmith to score single runs in the second and fourth innings. "That's the way it goes," said Messersmith. Kison, 8-4, like Alston, said he doesn't like to count his chickens too

"We can't get too comfortable, and there's certainly no reason for the Dodgers to panic," he said. "It's a long season and we're only at the halfway point."

Blue language doesn't bother woman umpire

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) - Christine Wren, the only woman in blue in professional baseball, says she doesn't turn the other cheek when she hears blue words either from the men on the field or the fans in the stands.

'Four-letter words are part of baseball," said Wren, an umpire in the Northwest League the past three weeks. "It doesn't bother me. I grew up with it. I've probably called umpires everything anybody will ever call me

The 26-year-old Miss Wren said when coaches argue with her, she doesn't take it personally.

"He's not mad at me; he's mad that his player is out," she said. "On a close play, it's good for a coach to argue. It gets his players

Miss Wren, a native of Yakima, Wash., said she still has a lot to learn about the game, and even though most coaches give her more advice than she needs, she listens to valid

Larrieu breaks own mark

PARIS (AP) - Francie Larrieu of Los Angeles broke her own American record in the 1,500-meter run in a track meet in a Paris suburb Wednesday night with a time of 4:08.5. Miss Larrieu's fastest previous time for the distance was 4:09.8. Marie-Francoise Dubois of France finished second in 4:08.6, bettering her own French record. The performances by Miss Larrieu and Miss Dubois were the second and third best times of the vear at this distance, behind the 4:06.6 of Grete

Anderson of Norway Martine Rooms of France set a fast pace for the first 800 meters at the St. Maur Stadium and then dropped back to let the two women seeking records fight it out. Miss Larrieu took the lead up to the 1,100-meter mark where Miss Dubois went ahead. At the head of the final stretch, Miss Larrieu again moved into the lead and held a slight advantage as they raced to the finish.

In an 800-meter race Tuesday night Miss Larrieu had defeated Miss Dubois.

arguments from experienced coaches.

"You have to listen, Miss Wren said. "And I'd just as soon listen-but I don't have to listen to the same line twice.

Concentrating 100 per cent on the game in front of her is of paramount importance, she says, explaining that, like the players, she mentally psyches herself up for each game.

"If you don't psyche yourself up you're dead on your feet. Your bounce is gone, your hustle is gone and so is your game. You owe it to the ballplayers to be psyched for every Bill Berrer, manager of the Bellingham Dodgers, said, "I think she's out there trying but I think there's times when she makes up her mind before the play develops. If she would just wait a split second to make her decision and not anticipate, she'd do a lot better.'

Miss Wren would give herself pretty good marks as an umpire.

"I think I've done a pretty good job," she said. "I wouldn't say it was excellent, but I've seen worse.

"Umpiring is the only profession I know where you have to start out perfect and work your way up from there.

Pomona Fence 11, Fashion Carpets Pizza Palace 16, Weeks Roses 0 All-Cities Fence 6, M.K. Smith 1 WEEK'S HIGHLIGHTS Fashion Carpets was upset in the last week of play by the fences, Pomona Fence and All-Cities Fence. Steer 'n' Stein and Pizza Palace continued to win to make the standings close at the end of the season. On Tuesday night, I ony Urosco pitched a two-hitter and had 11 strikeouts against Fashion. With the game tied 3-3, Mike Palacios hit a long single to left with two men on and two men out to score both men on base and win the game. Friday, behind the superb pitching of Fernando Ramírez' eight strikeouts, and a six-hit attack by Pomona Fence, including a homerun by Ramírez, brought to an end the hopes of Fashion Carpets to retain the championship crown.
